

Hello, I'm Kate. I'm 20 and I read a lot. I love romance novels. I guess it's a girls' thing. I'm very romantic and I love reading impossible love stories. There's always a happy end. I dislike science fiction because I just can't get into the story. I also dislike fantasy because the stories take place in unreal settings and couldn't happen in real life. I usually treat myself to a book per month. You can get paperbacks on the Internet for next to nothing.

Hello everybody! My name is Leslie and I'm 17. I read whatever books I happen to see. I've been reading ever since I learnt to read. When I was a child my parents used to take me to the library on Saturday mornings and I spent most of my week-ends devouring the books I had borrowed. I read poetry, fiction –mainly fantasy and mystery- and also autobiographies. Historical novels are my favorite because I can live in another period of time for an hour or two. I must admit I'm a great fan of History too. I read whenever I have a moment. Sometimes I even miss my stop on the subway and I have to get off at the next stop. I guess I'm a little bit addicted to reading but I don't think there's any harm in that, is there?
